Campo! Privacy Policy

This is the privacy policy for Campo! and explains how we collect and use personal information and how we keep it private and secure.

We only collect the personal information you give us on the booking form for any of our camps/gatherings. The booking form asks for:

- your name;
- your contact details (e-mail address, telephone number and nearest town/city)
- any access issues

If you give us your personal information in this way we will use that information to contact you/send you details of camps/gatherings and clarify any access issues.

We have a Campo! group e-mail and you will be asked to 'opt into' this. We will not add you to the group without your permission.

If you contact us via social media, e.g. by indicating attendance at a camp/gathering or posting a message on our Facebook page, or posting a message on Twitter, we may contact you using social media.

We do not collect any sensitive personal information about you (this includes details about your race or ethnicity, religious or philosophical beliefs, sex life, sexual orientation, political opinions, trade union membership, information about your health and genetic and biometric data). Nor do we collect any information about criminal convictions and offences.

Our booking forms for events/gatherings do ask for information on any access requirements which may be due to a health issue or disability but this information is not stored by us beyond the life of any particular camp/gathering.

Only those organising a specific camp/gathering and our technical manager have access to booking forms, and hence to your personal information. Booking forms are not kept beyond the life of any particular camp/gathering, however your contact details (email address) is retained within the email system access to which is limited to the technical manager and camp/gathering organisers. You can ask that your contact details are deleted at any time by emailing camp@campocampo.co.uk.

Your personal information will be treated in accordance with applicable data protection law. Campo! does not, and will not, share any personal information - including contact details such as email addresses - with any outside organisation of any kind.

Our website and email are stored on secure servers covered by European GDPR legislations.

We are subject to the law, and have to comply. So if relevant authorities, with proper authorisation such as a court order, ask us to hand over any personal information we may hold we would have to do so. However, as we only hold onto such information for the life of a camp/gathering, we wouldn't have very much that would be of interest to any such authority.

You remain in control of your personal information, and under the new legislation you have the right to: withdraw consent to Campo! holding any of your personal information at any time; ask us to tell you what personal information about you that we hold; ask for a copy of that personal information; ask us to correct any inaccurate information.

If you would like further information about any of your rights or wish to exercise them, please send us an email at camp@campocampo.co.uk.

If you are not happy with how we have used/held/respected your personal information and if you are still not happy after contacting us and asking us to change/delete any personal information, or you believe that your data protection or privacy rights have been infringed, you can complain to the UK Information Commissioner's Office, which oversees data protection compliance in the UK. www.ico.org.uk.

Campo! may update this privacy policy and if we do, we will let you know by putting a notice on our website.

If you have any questions about the Campo! privacy policy, please send us an email to camp@campocampo.co.uk.
